ABOUT US

Founded in 2000, the European Association for the defence of Human Rights (AEDH) is a European network of 31 human rights organisations based in 22 member states of the European Union and in Switzerland. Within a Europe where important choices are made on the European level concerning more than 500 million people, AEDH defends and promotes human rights, democracy and citizenship.

OBJECTIVES

L'AEDH works or:

- A democratic Europe in which citizens get a real power
- A Europe grounded on the respect of freedom of each and every person
- A Europe which maintains its concern for social equality
- A Europe respectful of the environment and engaged in sustainable development
- A Europe without discrimination
- A Europe open to the world and taking into account its international responsibilities

METHODS

AEDH :

- Raises awareness and informs its members and citizens on EU policies having an impact on human rights;
- Brings its members together in the framework of its thematic priorities in order to develop analysis and common positions ;
- It defends its claims and recommendations towards European decisionmakers
- Joins collective actions of European networks in order to defend human rights together

THEMES

AEDH concentrates its actions in particular on:

- economic, social and cultural rights
- minority rights and the fight against discrimination
- active and inclusive citizenship
- the right to asylum and the rights of migrants
- the right to privacy and the protection of personal data

*Pour une Europe des droits de l'Homme !
For a Europe of Human Rights!*

OUR METHODS

MONITORING OF POLITICAL AND LEGAL DEVELOPMENTS

The close monitoring of European policies related to human rights is essential for improving the understanding of the EU's impact on fundamental rights and of the problems and risks and for the defence and protection of rights by citizens on the European level. AEDH follows the input in the legislative process of the European Commission, the Council of Ministers and of the European Parliament. It follows public hearings and relevant conferences organised by the institutions, experts and civil society.

AWARENESS RAISING AND CAPACITY-BUILDING

AEDH informs members and citizens about EU policies and legislative developments related to human rights in Europe through press releases, thematic bulletins, newsletters, reports, its website and social media.

AEDH thematic working groups and joint seminars bringing together members of different EU member states are the framework for developing analysis and common positions. AEDH puts its member organisations in contact to share knowledge on national contexts, exchange best practises and give trainings on European policies. allows AEDH members to integrate the EU dimension in their daily work and to raise awareness among citizens.

DIALOGUE WITH INSTITUTIONS AND ADVOCACY

AEDH makes its voice and the voice of its members heard by EU decision makers through position papers, open letters, campaigns, by answering to public consultations and organising conferences and meetings with key stakeholders.

- The dialogue with the European Parliament, only democratically elected European institution is particularly important for AEDH
- AEDH is a member of the structured dialogue « active citizenship group » of the European Commission and promotes in the group a participative, social and inclusive citizenship
- AEDH is a member of the civil society liaison group of the European Economic and Social Committee (EESC) since 2007. The liaison group aims to encourage dialogue and cooperation between the EESC and the representatives of civil society networks and organisations. AEDH represents the domain of human rights.
- AEDH contributes with its expertise to the work of the Fundamental Rights Agency (FRA), being a member of the Fundamental Rights Platform. The platform consists of over 300 civil society organisations and aims to foster exchange of information and expertise. The civil society organisations are regularly invited to answer to public consultations of the Agency.
- AEDH is also one of the civil society organisations consulted by the European Asylum Support Office (EASO)

PARTNERSHIP WITH CIVIL SOCIETY ACTORS

The voice of the AEDH is strengthened by its joint work with organisations with which it shares values and positions.

- The AEDH naturally interacts with the International Federation for Human Rights (FIDH)
- Since June 2012, the AEDH is a full member of the Euro-Mediterranean Human Rights Network (EMHRN), a network that promotes and strengthens human rights and democratic reform in the region via cooperation between civil society organisations. AEDH participates in the EMHRN «justice», «asylum» and «freedom of association» working groups.
- The AEDH is also member of the Board of the European Civic Forum (ECF), a transnational network of over 100 associations and NGOs across 27 European countries actively working to promote civic and popular ownership of Europe.

- The AEDH is also member of the NGO Platform on asylum and immigration policies of the European Union. Regular meetings between the NGOs working on these topics allow members to share knowledge and expertise and develop common approaches.
- The informal network Human Rights and Democracy Network (HRDN) – which AEDH is a member of – gathers NGOs working for the defence and promotion of Human rights, in particular in relations with the EU and third countries.

ASYLUM AND MIGRATION

AEDH acts for a European Union where the right to asylum and the rights of migrants are fully respected. Every asylum seekers has to be offered reception conditions that enable him/her to have a dignified standard of living throughout the asylum procedure. The integration of migrants and refugees must be a priority.

reiterated its call for the elimination of the Dublin regulation. AEDH also strongly opposed any form of deprivation of liberty of asylum seekers. In order to strengthen its voice, AEDH has mobilized its members to disseminate a common letter on the World Refugee Day on June 20th. In this context, it also joined a joint call of a large coalition of NGOs on the European level.

THE ASYLUM PACKAGE AND ITS TRANSPOSAL IN NATIONAL LEGISLATION

In June 2013, the reform of the “European common asylum system “ has been concluded with the adoption of several texts defining the legislation on asylum in member states of the European Union. AEDH has critically followed the legislative process. In particular it challenged unequal treatment of asylum seekers depending on the country examining their application of asylum and has

The asylum package having been adopted, it is up to member states to transpose the package in national legislation until July 2015 at the latest for most of the texts, others are already implemented. The directives only determine minimal conditions member states have to respect, so AEDH has published an analysis (integrate the asylum package in national legislation) that shows the implications of the different aspects of the reform and how it could lead to a transposition in favour of persons in need of protection. AEDH also highlighted the aspects that could lead to a step backwards of rights of individuals. Based on this report, AEDH has organized trainings for associations (members of AEDH and others) as for the most important aspects of the asylum package to allow associations to follow the process of transposal in national legislation and to defend a high protection of the rights of asylum seekers and refugees.

In this context, AEDH has moderated several training sessions: for French syndicalists at the University of Paris 1 (December 2013), for French associations at the CFDA (October 2013); the association of French lawyers (March 2013); Luxembourgian associations (February 2014). AEDH has also organised a training session for member organizations in Brussels in November 2013 bringing together 17 human rights organisations of 16 EU member states. Also, AEDH tries to make its voice heard by members of Parliament, for example in Luxembourg in the context of a training session.

CAMPAIGN

« EUROPE ACT NOW »

In the context of the humanitarian crisis in Syria, the campaign “Europe act now” calls on the European institutions and on member states to give refugees a safe way into Europe, protect refugees arriving at Europe’s borders and reunite families torn apart by crisis.

The campaign is organised by the European Council on refugees and exiles (ECRE) and supported by over 100 partners, among those AEDH. The campaign is also supported by the Un Refugee Agency and the European Programme on Integration and Migration (EPIM), an initiative of the Network of European Foundations (NEF).

READMISSION AGREEMENTS AND MOBILITY PARTNERSHIPS

AEDH is strongly opposed to readmission agreements between the European Union and third countries as for the risk of disrespect for the rights of migrants linked to readmission agreements as well as for the method employed by the EU for the negotiation and implementation of the agreements. In the context of the vote of the readmission agreement with Armenia by the European Parliament in October 2013, AEDH published an analytical note explaining the policy of readmission agreements and the risk for fundamental rights.

As a member of the Euro-Mediterranean Human Rights Network, AEDH also participated in several calls challenging the content and orientation of the mobility partnerships with countries of Southern Mediterranean: in particular Morocco (<http://www.aedh.eu/EMHRN-s-analysis-of-the-Mobility.html>) and Tunisia (<http://www.aedh.eu/Joint-Press-Release-Tunisia-EU.html>).

SEASONAL WORKERS’ DIRECTIVE

The European legislation on labour migration continues to be a priority for AEDH. It has followed critically the evolution of the Seasonal workers’ directive adopted by the European Parliament on February 5 2014. AEDH is strongly opposed to the division of rights of migrant workings depending on their qualifications as foreseen in the Hague Programme leading to unequal treatment between workers and limited rights for seasonal workers of third countries.

THE FUTURE OF THE STOCKHOLM PROGRAMME

AEDH has answered to the consultation of the European Commission and has analysed the framework and content of the area of freedom, security and justice. This document resumes the announced that a decision could be delayed until 2015.

PROTECTION OF PERSONAL DATA

AEDH defends the right to privacy as fundamental right and acts for the protection of personal data. Security considerations, border protection, immigration control and the fight against terrorism cannot justify eroding the right to privacy and the protection of personal data.

REFORM OF THE GENERAL DATA PROTECTION FRAMEWORK IN THE EUROPEAN UNION

In January 2012, the European Commission proposed a general regulation on data protection, with an accompanying directive on the handling of personal data by public authorities in the area of police and legal cooperation in criminal matters. Since then, AEDH has enjoined MEPs to guarantee a high level of protection for personal data in the European Union. In particular, AEDH seeks to ensure that the directive on the handling of data by justice and police authorities should provide the same level of protection for personal data as the general framework does. The European Parliament has adopted the regulation and the directive in its plenary session of February 2014. The Council has to finalise the reform but has already

MODERNISATION OF THE CONVENTION N° 108 OF THE COUNCIL OF EUROPE

Since 2011, AEDH has been a member with observer status of the Council of Europe's Bureau of the Consultative Committee tasked with the modernisation of Convention 108. . While AEDH is not a voting member, it was able to communicate its proposed modifications. AEDH proposes amendments that would reinforce the protection of privacy and personal data. Whether it involved the definition of sensitive data, consent for data collection, opening membership to international organizations, or mandatory protection for transfers to third countries, AEDH tries to persuade, even though some of its proposals went "too far" for the Bureau's members.

The new version of the Convention for the Protection of Individuals with regard to Automatic Processing of Personal Data (ETS No. 108) has now been finalised. The T-PD Bureau must now review the explanatory report (which will be closely followed by AEDH, as many of its proposals were sent back to the said report) and an ad hoc committee has been established to present the texts to the Council of Ministers of the Council of Europe.

PROJECT « FILING, INFORMING CITIZENS »

The project «Filing, Informing citizens: passport for personal data» aims at overcoming the lack of public knowledge on the files made by public authorities and the use of their personal data.

The project is coordinated by the French member of the AEDH, the League of Human Rights (LDH), and partners include AEDH, Hungarian Civil Liberties Union, Humanistische Union in Germany, the Human Rights League of Luxembourg and the European network of Judges for Democracy and Freedom (MEDEL). The project takes place from January 2013 up to June 2014.

The partners analyzed personal data collection in 14 Member States and at the EU level, and used the results of this research for their work in advocacy and dialogue with European and national institutions. They developed tools for the European public to raise awareness the risks associated institutional FILING and explanation of possibilities appeals against the use of their data and the role of data protection authorities. These tools are used in training sessions for human rights defenders and citizens. In April 2014, the partnership organized a public conference to discuss with parliamentarians, officials from the European Commission and the European Data Protection Supervisor on the future of the personal data protection in the European Union.

In the framework of the project, AEDH has been responsible for analyzing the European files in the field of police and justice (SIS, VIS II, Eurodac, Ecris) and will organise training sessions in Brussels.

THE INSEROM PROJECT: ROMA HAVE RIGHTS!

The Inserom project: Roma have rights! (January 2013 – December 2014) aims at combating the discriminations Roma are confronted with all over Europe with human rights education and empowerment of Roma communities.

The project is coordinated by AEDH French member, the Human Rights League and project partners include AEDH and its members Asocciación Pro Derechos Humanos Andalucía (APDHA), Czech Helsinki Committee and Black and Ethnic Minorities in Scotland (BEMIS).

The partners develop a reference book explaining the fundamental rights legislation on the European level and in the countries of the project partners. They develop a trainer's guide for trainers and volunteers working with Roma communities so that the informations of the reference book can be passed on efficiently and trainings improved. One further pillar of the project is the lobbying for Roma rights on the European and national level.

CITIZENSHIP AND DEMOCRACY

AEDH acts for a democratic and transparent European Union in which citizens have a real power. AEDH It promotes an inclusive and social residence-based citizenship. AEDH aims at encouraging the participation of citizens on the European level.

THE EUROPEAN YEAR OF CITIZENS ALLIANCE

In the framework of the European Year of Citizens 2013, AEDH has been active in the European Year of Citizens Alliance gathering 62 European members that represent more than 4000 organisations in Europe acting for an active, inclusive and social citizenship. During 2013, the alliance developed recommendations for European citizenship bringing its members together in working groups. AEDH co-moderated the working group “inclusive citizenship” and participated in the steering committee of the alliance.

Beyond the European Year 2013, the alliance continues to promote its political recommendations to members of the European Commission, members of the European Parliament, the Council as well as to national actors. AEDH contributes to this mobilisation for an active, inclusive and social European citizenship through conferences and by taking position.

EUROPE+: CIVIL SOCIETY FOR THE RENEWAL OF THE EUROPEAN DEMOCRACY

AEDH forms part of Europe+ gathering more than 40 civil society organisations engaging for a democratic change in the European Union led by the European Movement International. Europe+ builds on the recommendations of the European Year of Citizens Alliance 2013 and wants to renew the European democracy by improving the participation of citizens in European political life, institutional reform and the change of policies.

A EUROPE OF RIGHTS: HERE, NOW, FOR ALL!

The campaign “A Europe of rights: here, now, for all!” aims at putting human rights at the centre of debates on the future of Europe before and after the European elections in May 2014; it aims at mobilizing citizens for the defence of fundamental rights and to participate at the European elections.

“A Europe of rights: here, now, for all!” is a common project of AEDH and its member organisations. In the framework of two meetings in 2013, AEDH and its members have developed the manifesto “For a Europe of human rights” with the claims and recommendations of the organisations. The manifesto has been translated to 13 languages and has been submitted to candidates of the European elections asking them to react to the manifesto.

AEDH member organisations have organized events in their countries in order to inform citizens about the implications of the European elections and in order to discuss with candidates and citizens the manifesto “For a Europe of Human Rights”.

After the European elections in May 2014, AEDH will continue the campaign welcoming the newly elected MEPs and in order to raise awareness on the defence of fundamental rights at the beginning of their mandate. The manifesto will continue to be an important reference tool for promoting the demands of AEDH.

ECONOMIC AND SOCIAL RIGHTS

AEDH acts for a European Union that guarantees economic, social and cultural rights and promotes a European social residence-based citizenship.

AEDH has prepared a questionnaire on economic and social rights for its member organisations in order to get a clearer picture on economic and social rights in the European Union and in order to have an efficient tool for its work of lobbying on the European level. In May 2014, AEDH is analysing the answers and drafting a global report. Once finished, the report will be available on the website of AEDH.

to him, citizens no longer know by whom they are governed and who has the power, thus reflecting a lack of democratic transparency.

During this conference-debate, speakers from the Belgian leagues and the Spanish league testified about the situation on the ground and their strategies to combat Human rights abuses. Rafael Lara, AEDH Secretary-General and member of the Asociación Pro Derechos Humanos de Andalucía (APDHA - Spain), explained the dramatic economic situation in Spain and how the policies imposed by the Troika do not take us out of the crisis, but are driving us into poverty. Paul Pataer, vice-chairman of the Liga voor Mensenrechten, then testified how fundamental rights, and more particularly the right to housing, are implemented in Flanders (Northern Belgium). Emphasizing the interconnectivity of rights, he recalled that the right to housing is a fundamental right from which many other rights flow. Finally, Edgar Szoc, board member of the Belgian League of Human Rights, underlined that the lack of government during a very long period that prevented the imposition of drastic austerity measures ; measures that have had a destructive effect on economic growth in other countries such as Greece and Spain.

CONFERENCE-DEBATE: “CRISIS: EUROPE AT THE SERVICE OF PEOPLE?”

On Monday 11th November 2013, AEDH, its Belgian leagues – the Ligue des Droits de l’Homme and the Liga voor Mensenrechten – and Bruxelles Laïque co-organised a conference-debate : « Crisis : Europe at the service of people ? ». During this conference, several speakers were invited to discuss the situation of economic and social rights in the European Union since the economic crises and to assess the impact of the crisis on European democracies and integration.

John Pitsey, philosopher and jurist, researcher at CRISP, highlighted that we cannot talk about the current economic crisis without mentioning the previous crises as well as the rise of populisms and extremism in Europe. At the same time, the climate of mistrust vis-a-vis democratic organs and the feeling of social and economic injustice predate 2009. He also drew attention to the various questions we may have in relation to our institutions. According

In conclusion, this conference-debate allowed attendees to gain a European perspective on the situation of economic and social rights and to better understand the social reality in the most affected countries, those of the South of Europe.

COMMUNICATION

THE WEBSITE

The AEDH website offers an overview on human rights in the European Union referring to legislative developments, analysis and statistics of research organisations, presenting the activities of AEDH and its 32 members. The website provides the essential European legislation on every theme AEDH works on, the activities and position papers of members and partner organisations on the regional, national and European level. In april 2014, the website had an average of 578 daily visits. This number is increased by the publication of the contents by AEDH members on their own websites.

FACEBOOK

Since 2013, AEDH has systematically social media in its daily work of dissemination: the first results of this work are visible with 835 new “likes” on Facebook as of May 1st 2014. The cooperation of AEDH and its members on social media has to be further improved.

THE NEWSLETTER

The bi-monthly AEDH newsletter reports the main events related to human rights in the European Union reflecting developments on the European level and in the different member states. It provides an overview of European legislative news, along with updates on activities and positions of AEDH and its members.

The newsletter is published in English and French and disseminated to about 1000 subscribers, including members, civil society contacts and citizens. Many of our members and partners also redistribute the newsletter to their contacts, which greatly increases its actual circulation.

PRESS RELEASES AND ANALYSES

The AEDH regularly takes a stand at the European level in order to inform European citizens and to call out the political decision-makers when there is an infringement or a risk of infringement of fundamental rights. By its press releases and analyses, the AEDH tries to encourage citizens to seize the opportunity to debate on big European issues and to get involved in the democratic life of the EU. The AEDH often releases joint statements with its members’ organisations to draw the attention on violations of Fundamental Rights occurring in a member state.

All press releases are widely disseminated to European citizens, parliamentarians, representatives of the European institutions, civil society partners and journalists thanks to the publication in different languages: systematically in English and in French and often also in Italian, German or Spanish.

AEDH IN THE NEWS

AEDH has had a large press echo and has been cited in over 50 press, journal, radio and television reports in national and European media such as Le Monde, El Pais, Euobserver, N-TV, Arte, Romea.cz, TV 5, Radio France Internationale and others.

AEDH analyses, research and position papers have been cited by many research organisations, such as the Robert Schuman Foundation, the Centre for European Policy Studies, the Regional Centre for Minority Rights etc.

This figure reflects growing recognition for the AEDH's work as well as the association's increased visibility as an authority on human rights issues in Europe.

AEDH MEMBERS

AEDH's strength comes from the knowledge and experience of its members. Its expanding network reinforces its expertise and the legitimacy of its actions towards the European institutions. Affiliation with the AEDH benefits members by enhancing their understanding of European policies, facilitating the exchange of best practices and supporting joint work and a united front on a European level.

As of May 2014, AEDH has 31 member organisations in 23 European countries, including three European networks that are partner members and one observer member.

AEDH also boasts a growing number of individual members that embody its commitment to promoting a European civic movement for human rights.

The fees paid by member organisations and individuals are essential for that AEDH can operate on a daily basis and commit to building a Europe of human rights. For information on becoming a member of the AEDH please go to <http://www.aedh.eu/-Become-a-member-.html>
